QUEEN ELIZABETH II, 1926-2022

London mourners wait nine hours to say goodbye to queen

LONDON (AP) — Thousands of mourners waited for hours Thursday in a line that stretched for nearly 4 1/2 miles across London for the chance to spend a few minutes filing past Queen Elizabeth II's coffin while she lies in state.

King Charles III spent the day in private to reflect on his first week on the throne.

The queue to pay respects to the late queen at Westminster Hall was at least a nine-hour wait, snaking across a bridge and along the south bank of the River Thames beyond Tower Bridge. But people said they didn't mind the wait, and authorities brought in portable toilets and other facilities to make the slog bearable.

"I'm glad there was a queue, because that gave us time to see what was ahead of us, prepared us and absorbed the whole atmosphere," health care professional Nimisha Maroo said. "I wouldn't

CONNEAUT LAKE — What is a Kiwanian? As the Greenville Kiwanis

Club celebrated its centennial Thursday, longtime member Brad Gosser joked that even after all his years with the club, his phone still can't spell it. But current club President Dan Spence offered something that begins to explain.

He opened the evening with a slide show of past and present members hammering shingles onto a pavilion at the Greenville Area Sports Complex; the club's Eastern egg hunts and Little League sponsorships; ringing the bell for the local Salvation Army; and its long-running, ever popular chicken barbecues.

The video lasted six minutes, but he said it could have gone on for an

"What I think makes this group so special is its members," Bell said.

MERCER — Local voters are just over 50 days away from an election in which they'll pick a new governor, U.S. senator and local legislators, and county officials are getting ready.

When the county election board met Thursday, it approved extended office hours for the elections office in the days before Election Day for mail-in voters looking to drop off their ballots.

Normally, the office closes at 4:30 p.m., but for the week of Oct. 24 to 28, it will stay open to 6 p.m., "giving people an hour and a half to drop off ballots after work," Elections Director Thad Hall said. Election Day is Nov. 8.

Voters requesting those mail-in ballots will be able to MERCER — For the first time since 2019, the Mercer Area Chamber of Commerce held its annual awards dinner Wednesday.

Chamber President Emily Palmer said she was so happy that the group was able to do this.

"Being able to have this dinner feels like we're genuinely returning to normal after the pandemic," she said. "I'm very proud of our Chamber members. They are all leaders in some way for the group."

Palmer, also the public relations director for the Children's Aid Society, began her two-year term as president in January.

She said her goal for this first year is to have a

Woman charged with bomb threat against children's hospital

BOSTON (AP) — Federal authorities on Thursday arrested a woman accused of calling in a fake bomb threat at Boston Children's Hospital, where doctors and staffers have been facing harassment and threats of violence over its surgical program for transgender youths.

Catherine Leavy, 37, was arrested at her home in Westfield, Mass., and authorities recovered the phone they believe she used to make the bomb threat on Aug. 30, Massachusetts U.S. Attorney Racheal Rollins told reporters.

The threat resulted in a lockdown of the hospital, and no explosives were found.

Leavy is being held pending a detention hearing scheduled for Friday in Boston federal court, Rollins said. She is charged with one count of making a false telephonic bomb threat. It was not immediately clear on Thursday if she has an attorney to comment on her behalf.

Rollins did not comment directly on the alleged motive in Leavy's case.

But she condemned the barrage of attacks against Boston Children's Hospital, which is home to the first pediatric and adolescent transgender health program in the United States.

"This alleged conduct is disturbing to stay the least," Rollins said. "The people that work at Children's Hospital and the parents that bring their loved ones to Children's Hospital are under enough stress," she said.

EDGARTWON, Mass. — A woman, who is part of a group of immigrants that had just arrived, holds a child as they are fed Wednesday outside St. Andrews Episcopal Church on Martha's Vineyard.

Florida flies migrants to 'sanctuary' of Martha's Vineyard

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis on Wednesday flew two planes of immigrants to Martha's Vineyard, escalating a tactic by Republican governors to draw attention to what they consider to be the Biden administration's failed border policies.

Flights to the upscale island enclave in Massachusetts were part of an effort to "transport illegal immigrants to sanctuary destinations," said Taryn Fenske, DeSantis' communications director.

While DeSantis' office didn't elaborate on their legal status, many migrants who cross the border illegally from Mexico are temporarily shielded from deportation after being freed by U.S. authorities to pursue asylum in immigration court — as allowed under U.S. law and international treaty — or released on humanitarian parole.

Massachusetts' Gov. Charlie Baker, a Republican, said he was in touch with local officials and that short-term shelter was being provided.

Martha's Vineyard has styled itself as a "sanctuary destination" that welcomes migrants — a position it took early in former President Donald Trump's administration.

State Rep. Dylan Fernandes, who represents Martha's Vineyard, tweeted: "Our island jumped into action putting together 50 beds, giving everyone a good meal, providing a play area for the children, making sure people have the healthcare and support they need. We are a community that comes together to support immigrants."

Texas Gov. Greg Abbott began busing thousands of migrants to Washington in April and recently added New York and Chicago as destinations. A

Two busloads of migrants dropped off near VP Harris' residence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two buses of migrants from the U.S.-Mexico border were dropped off near Vice President Kamala Harris' home in residential Washington on Thursday morning in the bitter political battle over the Biden administration's immigration policies.

Texas Gov. Greg Abbott has been busing migrants out of Texas to cities with Democratic mayors as part of a political strategy this year because he claims there are too many arrivals over the border to his state.

It was first dreamed up by former President Donald Trump.

Abbott tweeted that he'd sent the buses that arrived Thursday: "We're sending migrants to her backyard to call on the Biden Administration to do its job & secure the border."

About two dozen men and women stood outside the U.S. Naval Observatory at dawn, clutching clear plastic bags of their belongings carried with them over the border, before moving to a nearby church. Harris' office had no immediate comment.

After migrants seeking asylum cross the U.S.-Mexico border, they spend time in a U.S. Customs and Border Protection facility along the border until they are generally released into the U.S. to wait out their cases.

Republicans say Biden's policies encourage migrants to vanish into the U.S.; Democrats argue the Trump-era policy of forcing migrants to wait out their asylum cases in Mexico was inhumane.

District of Columbia Mayor Muriel Bowser declared a public emergency last week over the continued arrival of buses of migrants.

The district earlier requested National Guard assistance to help stem a "growing humanitarian crisis" prompted by the arrival of thousands of migrants, but the Pentagon rejected the request.

leaders who treat human beings like cargo, loading them up and sending them a thousand miles away without telling them their destination. Still, Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis made that choice today."

STOCKS

Stocks fall, indexes slip deeper into the red for the week

The Associated Press

Stocks gave up more ground Thursday, leaving major indexes on Wall Street deeper in the red for the week.

The S&P 500 fell 1.1 percent after another wobbly day of trading. The benchmark index is now down 4.1 percent for the week following the biggest pullback for the market in more than two years on Tuesday.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 0.6 percent and the Nasdaq composite slid 1.4 percent. The Russell 2000 index of smaller companies closed 0.7 percent lower.

New retail sales data gave a mixed view of how consumers are coping with the hottest inflation in four decades. The government report showed that retail sales rose an unexpected 0.3 percent in August after falling 0.4 percent in July. Inflation hurt several areas of spending, though, with business at restaurants still growing, but at a slower pace, while furniture and online sales fell.

Consumer spending has been a strong point in the broader economy, along with employment, as inflation continues to squeeze businesses and consumers. High prices and the Federal Reserve's aggressive plan to raise interest rates as a solution remains Wall Street's main focus. Investors also worry the Fed's rate hikes will tip the economy into a recession that could hurt company earnings.

The S&P 500 fell 44.66 points to 3,901.35. The Dow dropped 173.27 points to 30,961.82. The Nasdaq fell 167.32 points to 11,552.36. The Russell 2000 gave up 13.23 points to 1,825.23.

QUEEN ELIZABETH II, 1926-2022

Prince says procession aroused Diana memories

LONDON — Prince William has told well-wishers that walking behind the coffin of his late grandmother Queen Elizabeth II was "challenging" and brought back memories of the funeral of his mother, Princess Diana.

William and his wife, Catherine, the new Princess of Wales, spent almost an hour Thursday chatting with dozens of people and viewed floral tributes outside Sandringham Estate, the royal country residence in Norfolk.

During Wednesday's coffin procession, William and his brother, Prince Harry, walked behind the queen's coffin along with their father, King Charles III, and the king's siblings from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Hall.

William, speaking of the procession, said: "The walk yesterday was challenging."

Jane Wells, 54, was among the thousands who turned up outside Sandringham Thursday.

"I said how proud his mother would have been of him, and he said how hard it was yesterday because it brought back memories of his mother's funeral," she told reporters afterward.

Diana died in a car crash in Paris in 1997.

Many in Britain still remember the image of a young William and his brother Harry walking with their father behind her coffin.

Palace reveals details of queen's state funeral on Monday

LONDON (AP) — Two minutes of silence will be observed Monday across the United Kingdom at the end of Queen Elizabeth II's state funeral at Westminster Abbey, giving British public across the nation a chance to pay their respects to the late monarch.

Buckingham Palace released more details Thursday about the state funeral of the queen who died Sept. 8 at 96 and her private interment later Monday.

Her death at her beloved Balmoral Castle summer retreat ended the monarch's 70-year reign.

Edward William Fitzalan-Howard, the official in charge of arrangements, said the funeral and events over coming days are intended to "unite people across the globe and resonate with people of all faiths, whilst fulfilling her majesty and her family's wishes to pay a fitting tribute to an extraordinary reign."

Tens of thousands were standing in a line Thursday that snaked for more than four miles along the River Thames in London, waiting to file in silence past her coffin.

"The queen held a unique and timeless position in all our lives. This has been felt more keenly over the past few days, as the world comes to terms with her demise," Fitzalan-Howard said.

On Friday evening, King Charles III and his siblings will stand vigil at their mother's coffin for 15 minutes as it lies in state at the 900-year-old Westminster Hall at the Houses of Parliament. Charles, Princess Anne, Prince Andrew and Prince Edward also stood vigil with the coffin when it lay in St. Giles' Cathedral in Edinburgh earlier this week.

Elizabeth

After the state funeral on Monday, attended by 2,000 guests, including U.S. President Joe Biden and other visiting heads of state, Elizabeth's coffin will be carried through the historic heart of London, from Westminster Abbey to Wellington Arch near Buckingham Palace on a horse-drawn gun carriage with Charles and other royals walking behind.

Also among the funeral guests will be nearly 200 people honored by the late queen for their work responding to the COVID-19 pandemic and in sectors including charities, healthcare and education.

Amid pomp and pageantry, the coffin will travel along virtually the same route, including down the flag-lined Mall to the one it passed Wednesday in front of hushed throngs of mourners when it was taken from the palace to the Houses of Parliament.

London's Heathrow Airport announced it will halt all flights for 15 minutes before the two-minute national silence on Monday, until 15 minutes after it has finished "to avoid noise disruption."

From London, the queen's coffin will then be driven in the state hearse to Windsor for a committal service at St. George's Chapel near Windsor Castle, attended by 800 people, including members of the queen's household and Windsor estate staff.

At the end of the service, the coffin will be lowered into the Royal Vault and the sovereign's piper will play a lament.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Justin Welby, will pronounce the blessing and the congregation will sing "God Save The King."

Members of the royal family will then hold a private burial service at the King George VI Memorial Chapel, where the queen will be interred with her late husband, Prince Philip, who died last year at 99.

Farrell man charged after assaulting teen

Record-Argus staff reports

Greenville police have charged a Farrell man after he allegedly assaulted 13-year-old juvenile to the extent he had to be flown to a trauma center last week.

According to Greenville-West Salem Township Police, Jaden D. Howell, 18, of Farrell, allegedly knocked the juvenile victim unconscious Sept. 9 in the area of York and South Mercer streets, and kicked the victim in the head while on the ground.

The juvenile was taken to a local hospital before being flown by STAT MedEvac to a trauma center.

Howell has been charged with aggravated assault and simple assault.

Explosive device detonates during training, several hurt

SKIPPACK TOWNSHIP, Pa. (AP) — An explosive device unexpectedly detonated during a training exercise Thursday at a state prison in Montgomery County, authorities said, leaving several people injured.

The accident at the SCI Phoenix prison in Skippack Township occurred shortly before 10 a.m. The training session was being conducted by the FBI's Philadelphia field office and those in attendance included representatives from several state, county and local law enforcement agencies.

It was not immediately clear how many people were hurt in the accident. The injured were being treated at hospitals for undisclosed injuries that were not considered life-threatening, but further details were not immediately disclosed.

Authorities said the injured included bomb technicians from the Montgomery County Sheriff's Office, state police and the FBI.

The cause of the accident remains under investigation.

Sniper denied parole, 20 years after terrorizing D.C. area

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia has denied parole to convicted sniper killer Lee Boyd Malvo, ruling that he is still a risk to the community two decades after he and his partner terrorized the Washington, D.C., region with a series of random shootings.

Malvo was 17 when he and John Allen Muhammad shot and killed 10 people and wounded three others over a three-week span in October 2002. Multiple other victims were shot and killed across the country in the prior months as the duo made their way to the nation's capital region from Washington state.

Malvo was convicted of capital murder in Virginia and sentenced to life in prison without parole. But a series of Supreme Court rulings and a change in Virginia law gave Malvo the opportunity to seek parole after serving nearly 20 years in custody.

Board rejected his request on Aug. 30, finding that Malvo remains a risk to the community and should serve more of his sentence before being released on parole, state records of Parole Board decisions for August show.

"Release at this time would diminish seriousness of crime; Serious nature and circumstances of your offense(s)," the Parole Board wrote.

Malvo's accomplice, John Allen Muhammad, was executed in Virginia in 2009. Malvo, now 37, was sentenced to life without parole for the three Virginia killings.

But after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 2012 that mandatory life sentences for juveniles are unconstitutional, two federal courts found that Malvo was entitled to new sentencing hearings. The Virginia legislature also passed a law in 2020 that gave juvenile offenders an opportunity to seek parole after serving 20 years.

Veteran N.Y. judge named as arbiter in Trump Mar-a-Lago probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has appointed a veteran New York jurist to serve as an independent arbiter and review records seized during an FBI search of former President Donald Trump's Florida home last month.

The selection of Raymond Dearie, a former federal prosecutor who for years served as the chief judge of the federal court based in Brooklyn, came after both the Justice Department and Trump's lawyers made clear that they would be satisfied with his appointment as a so-called special master.

In that role, Dearie will be responsible for reviewing the documents taken during the Aug. 8 search of Mar-a-Lago and segregating out any that may be covered by claims of privilege.

It is not clear how long the work will take but the special master process has already delayed the investigation, with a judge in Florida directing the Justice Department to temporarily pause core aspects of its probe.

The Justice Department is investigating the hoarding of top-secret materials and other classified documents at the Florida property after Trump left office.

The FBI says it recovered more than 11,000 documents from the home during its Aug. 8 search, including over 100 with classification markings.

Trump's lawyers had asked last month for a judge to name a special master to do an independent review of the records and segregate any that may be covered by claims of executive privilege or attorney-client privilege.

The Justice Department argued the appointment was unnecessary, saying it had already done its own review and Trump had no right to raise executive privilege claims that ordinarily permit the president to withhold certain information from the public and Congress.

U.S. District Judge Aileen Cannon, a Trump appointee, disagreed and directed both sides to name potential candidates for the role.

She also ordered the Justice Department to halt its review of the documents for investigative purposes until "further Court order" or until the special master completes their review.

The Trump team recommended either Dearie or a Florida lawyer for the job. The Justice Department said that, in addition to the two retired judges whose names it submitted, it would also be satisfied with a Dearie appointment.

Dearie served as the top federal prosecutor for the Eastern District of New York from 1982 to 1986, at which point he was appointed to the federal bench by then-President Ronald Reagan.

He has also served on the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court, which authorizes Justice Department wiretap applications in investigations involving suspected agents of a foreign power.

He took senior status in 2011, but the Justice Department has said he remains active and had indicated to officials that he was available for the position and could work expeditiously if appointed to it.

Review: Ana de Armas digs deep as Marilyn in brutal 'Blonde'

By JOCELYN NOVECK
AP National Writer

What a dream it must be to be Marilyn Monroe, a starstruck assistant tells her. "Everyone would give their right arm to be you!"

And we cringe, as we'll do many times during Andrew Dominik's brutal, bruising and often beautiful "Blonde," starring a heartbreaking Ana de Armas. This time, it's because we already know that Norma Jeane, the real person underneath, is giving so much more than her right arm to be Marilyn. An arm would be getting off easy. She's giving her body, her sanity, her dignity, her health and probably her very soul to be Marilyn.

There's a lot that "Blonde," written and directed by Dominik with some stunning cinematography by Chayse Irvin, is. Let's first clarify what it isn't.

It is not a biopic, not in a familiar sense. It is not chronological, nor an attempt at a complete account. Most crucially, it's not factual — it's based on a novel, "Blonde" by Joyce Carol Oates.

And as for the performance at its core — de Armas' committed, fearless, leap of faith of a performance — well, it's not an imitation. And so the complaints circulating about her accent, saying her native Cuban inflection sometimes peeks through, are absurd and irrelevant. De Armas digs so deep to play Marilyn, she could be speaking ancient Greek, and it wouldn't affect the emotional truth she finds here.

What "Blonde" IS is ambitious. Far-reaching, at times perhaps too far. And frequently gorgeous, especially in expertly rendered scenes of old-fashioned Hollywood glitz, mainly in black-and-white — the endless flashbulbs popping (and sounding like gunshots) on the red carpet, the fans ogling, their faces sometimes distorted by lust. There are wonderful recreations of scenes from movies like "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" and "The Seven Year Itch."

Less convincing are the moments when we see sperm traveling toward an egg to indicate pregnancy, or a fetus that talks reprovingly to its future mother. Subtlety is not a goal here.

A yet thornier question involves the fine line between displaying the horrific exploitation of a character, and contributing to that exploitation.

As with many works of art, even as skillful as this, there's no easy answer, and different moments cut different ways.

We begin at the beginning — and an awful beginning it is. Young Norma Jeane (an affecting Lily Fisher) lives alone with her mother (Julianne Nicholson, superb and terrifying) who's slowly descending into madness. On her birthday, her mother shows the little girl a picture of a handsome man who, she says, was her father. The girl will ache for him from that day forward. Life is not safe with her mother, and when the woman finally has a total breakdown (the mother-daughter scenes are traumatic), Norma Jeane soon ends up at an orphanage.

Flash forward to adult Marilyn, showing up for a big audition with a studio head — who rapes her. Later, when asked by future husband Joe DiMaggio how she got started in movies, her mind goes straight to the rape.

Outwardly, she will say only, with hollow eyes: "I guess I was discovered."

One of the stranger elements here is Marilyn's (fictional) friendship with the sons of Edward G. Robinson and Charlie Chaplin, with whom she becomes a threesome in every way.

Around this time, she gets pregnant, and the studio arranges an abortion. When the ordeal is over, the song "Bye, Bye Baby" comes on the soundtrack — one of several on-the-nose music cues (when she's dropped at the orphanage, we hear "Everybody Needs a Da-Da-Daddy" from Monroe's "Ladies of the Chorus").

DiMaggio, the retired baseball legend (an excellent Bobby Cannavale), promises Marilyn a decent, respectable life but is consumed by jealousy. He instructs the wife who calls him "Daddy" to do movies where she isn't so sexy.

That doesn't quite work when "The Seven Year Itch" requires her to stand on the subway grate and have her white dress billow up around her waist. Dominik recreates this famous scene beautifully, and shows DiMaggio smoldering with rage while watching the shooting, amid ogling fans.

Like Cannavale, Adrien Brody is wonderfully cast as Marilyn's next husband, playwright Arthur Miller, a cerebral man who is amazed at her actual intellect — she reads Chekhov! — and offers what she hopes will be a stable life in Connecticut. She gets pregnant but tragedy strikes again. Soon, Marilyn will be hitting the pills, the bottles, and the bottles of pills.

Then, of course, there is JFK. We don't see the famous "Happy Birthday Mr. President" performance. But in 1962 (the year of her actual death) Marilyn is whisked by the president's handlers to a hotel room, and the film never seems quite so depressing as in the sordid task that awaits her, presaged in her earlier, plaintive question to his men: "Am I room service?"

It's probable this scene explains the film's NC-17 rating. In any case, it encapsulates the indignity that accompanied Norma Jeane's transformation into one of the enduring figures of 20th century pop culture.

If it was Marilyn that initially saved Norma Jeane, Dominik is saying, it was also Marilyn that overwhelmed her, suffocated her, and probably killed her.

"Blonde," a Netflix release, has been rated NC-17 by the Motion Picture Association of America for "some sexual content." Running time: 166 minutes. Three stars out of four.

Source: Meadows complies with Justice Dept. subpoena

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mark Meadows, the White House chief of staff under former President Donald Trump, has complied with a Justice Department subpoena and turned over records as part of a federal investigation into the Jan. 6, 2021 assault on the Capitol and efforts to overturn the 2020 presidential election, a person familiar with the matter said Thursday.

The records produced by Meadows are the same ones he earlier provided to a House committee conducting a similar investigation, according to the person, who spoke with The Associated Press on condition of anonymity to discuss an ongoing Justice Department probe.

The subpoena to Meadows, first reported by CNN, makes clear that Justice Department officials are seeking information from the most senior of Trump's White House advisers as they examine wide-ranging efforts to overturn the results of the election won by Democrat Joe Biden.

The department, whose work at times has mirrored or overlapped with that of the committee, this month served a broad wave of grand jury subpoenas and search warrants to Trump allies.

Meadows has been a pivotal figure in the House investigation, his name invoked repeatedly in testimony by other Trump advisers, including by his own top aide. He had provided the committee with thousands of text messages, including communications with outside Trump allies and advisers.

In a filing in April in a federal lawsuit over his House subpoena, a lawyer for Meadows accused the committee of trying to vilify him publicly, noting that all of the texts it had been provided had been disclosed to the news media.

Meadows did not provide to the committee records he believed were subject to claims of executive privilege and those documents were also not produced to the Justice Department.

Rioter who wore 'Camp Auschwitz' sweatshirt gets jail term

The Associated Press

A Virginia man who stormed the U.S. Capitol while wearing an antisemitic "Camp Auschwitz" sweatshirt over a Nazi-themed shirt was sentenced on Thursday to 75 days of imprisonment.

Robert Keith Packer, 57, declined to address U.S. District Judge Carl Nichols before he sentenced him during a hearing held by video conference. The judge noted the "incredibly offensive" message on Packer's sweatshirt before imposing the sentence.

"It seems to me that he wore that sweatshirt for a reason. We don't know what the reason was because Mr. Packer hasn't told us," Nichols said.

Photographs of Packer wearing the sweatshirt went viral after the Jan. 6, 2021, attack on the Capitol. When FBI agents asked him why he wore it, he "fatuously" replied, "Because I was cold," a federal prosecutor said in a court filing.

Packer's sweatshirt depicted an image of a human skull above the words "Camp Auschwitz." The word "Staff" was on the back. It also bore the phrase "Work Brings Freedom," a rough translation of the German words above the entrance gate to Auschwitz, the concentration camp in occupied Poland.

drop them off in-person, instead of sending through the mail, but they'll have to do it themselves. Hall said elections workers check the name on the ballot before accepting each one. He anticipates mailing out the first big round of mail-in ballots Oct. 11. As of Thursday afternoon, 6,660 have been requested, as well as 19 military and overseas ballots. As part of Thursday's meeting, the county had to affirm that it would follow a handful of stipulations in order to receive a $370,000 state election integrity grant.

As previously reported, that includes counting its mail-in ballots on Election Day, instead of waiting until the day after as in the past. That's new, but the grant also requires some steps the county already takes, such as removing deceased voters from the rolls. Hall said the county's first step is checking local obituaries. It catches a large number of deaths that way, he said, but reports from the Department of Health fill in many of the gaps. The county also receives reports the week of the election from the county coroner to catch the most recent deaths.

The board also approved moving the Hermitage Southeast 3 precinct from the St. George Serbian Church to the Family Life Church. The Family Life Church already houses the city's Northeast 2 precinct, but Hall said it provides more parking and accessibility, beyond being able to take on the additional precinct. Also approved was the wording of a ballot question on the possible merger of Hermitage and Wheatland. The elections meeting followed the weekly meeting of the Mercer County commissioners, during which, the board:

- Approved adding Ben Zimmer, director of prevention and recovery ministries of the Bethel Life Worship Center, Greenville, to the Mercer County Opiate Settlement Committee.

- Approved paying $5,450 to Safety Protection Grid Solutions of Mansfield, Ohio, to conduct a power, grounding transient, overvoltage protection and lightning inspection and evaluation following equipment damage at the county's Emergency Management Agency building on Route 19 in a lighting strike.
- Discussed cost of living adjustments to the county pension program. Commissioner Tim McGonigle broached the topic after a county retiree asked about a possible adjustment since there hasn't been one since 2006. Controller Steve Sherman noted that the county pension fund is "exceptionally funded," but Fiscal Administrator John Logan, who will retire in a matter of months, noted that his concern would not be the short-term costs, but how an increase might affect the long-term health of the fund. County officials noted such increases are rare for the defined benefit plan, and said no increase is planned.

have liked it if I'd had to just rush through." A week after the queen died at Balmoral Castle in Scotland after 70 years on the throne, the focus of commemorations was in Westminster — the heart of political power in London. Her coffin will lie in state at Westminster Hall until Monday, when it will be taken across the street to Westminster Abbey for the queen's funeral. Buckingham Palace on Thursday released details about the service, the first state funeral held in Britain since the death of former Prime Minister Winston Churchill in 1965. Royalty and heads of state from around the world are expected to be among the 2,000 people attending, with a smaller burial service planned for later Monday at Windsor Castle.

Late Monday, the queen will be buried in a private family service at Windsor alongside her late husband, Prince Philip, who died last year. The guest list for the state funeral is a roll-call of global power and pomp, from Japan's Emperor Naruhito and King Felipe VI of Spain to U.S. President Joe Biden, French President Emmanuel Macron and the prime ministers of Canada, Australia and New Zealand. Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau — who first met the queen when he was a child and his father Pierre Trudeau was Canada's leader — said the queen was "one of my favorite people in the world." "Her conversations with me were always candid, we talked about anything and everything, she gave her best advice on a range of issues, she was always curious, engaged and thoughtful," he said at a special session of the Canadian parliament in Ottawa.

After a day of high ceremony and high emotions on Wednesday as the queen's coffin was carried in somber procession from Buckingham Palace, the king was spending Thursday working and in "private reflection" at his Highgrove residence in western England. Charles has had calls with Biden and Macron and has been speaking to a host of world leaders. Prince William, the heir to the throne, and his wife Catherine, the Princess of Wales, visited the royal family's Sandringham estate in eastern England on Thursday to admire some of the tributes left by well-wishers. The couple walked slowly along metal barriers as they received bouquets from the public and chatted to well-wishers. Other royals fanned out across the U.K. to thank people for their support, with the queen's youngest son, Prince Edward, and his wife Sophie visiting Manchester and the queen's daughter Princess Anne in Glasgow.

club started in 1922. The evening's speakers highlighted the club's commitment to youth, with Bell pointing to another chunk of the Kiwanis' mission to "improve the world, one child and one community at a time." Karen Sherwood, a member of the neighboring Transfer Kiwanis Club and lieutenant governor for Division 2, presented awards to representatives for the local Kiwanis youth programs — K-Kids, Key Club and Circle K. "Our future is bright when you look at the service these young people provide," Sherwood said. In honoring those people that make the Greenville club special, Sherwood offered awards for every member with more than 25 years of membership, including Russell Poe, who had the highest total with 45 years.

CONNEAUT LAKE — Kiwanis District Governor Sarah Zulueta traveled all the way from Philadelphia Thursday to be the Greenville Kiwanis Club as it celebrated its centennial at the Iroquois Club.

They also took special time Thursday to recognize those that couldn't celebrate with them. The club offered the Distinguished Service Award for Spence's late wife, Dottie Spence, who passed away in March 19, 2021. "She was active in just about every Kiwanis Club activity in Greenville," Sherwood said. And Bell offered a prayer for one of the evening's organizers, Clemente, who wasn't able to attend because of health. District Governor Sarah Zulueta and Executive Director Kevin Thomas encouraged the club members to take the club's celebration of its 100th year as an opportunity to renew their commitment to those missions. "So there is a 125th celebration and a 150th," Thomas said.

normal year when all pre-COVID-19 events are held again. She is also looking to add new members and hopes to start some new events during her stint as president. The main event of the evening was the presentation of awards for Non-profit Business of the Year, Business of the Year and the Gen. Hugh Mercer Award for Community Spirit. Chamber Vice President Susan Lanigan, owner of Shiloh Ayurveda yoga and pilates studio in Mercer, presented the Gen. Hugh Mercer Award to Allie Adams, owner of Allie's Sweet Tooth, in Mercer. Adams received the award because of her involvement, contributions and support of the community and its organizations. She is on the Chamber Board of Directors.

Allie's Sweet Tooth, opened a year ago, serves specialty coffee drinks in addition to macarons, decorated sugar cookies that can be customized, as well as many other bakery delights. She has added a walk-thru window at her shop, offers cookie decorating classes and supports local school and community fundraisers. Adams is also responsible for organizing and starting Mercer Market on Saturdays, beginning a few months ago. It is a farmers and vendor market for local business people to get their names and wares into the community. In her award citation, the Chamber said it appreciates the time, energy and vision Adams put forth to make the market happen. Business of the Year was awarded to Simply Sweets owner Patty Peck. That award was given, the Chamber said, because Simply Sweets is a well-run small business that has, in one year, become a model for other small businesses. The store has even been featured in some Pittsburgh publications. Peck offers homemade chocolates, soups, baked goods, casseroles and specialty coffees. She also has weekly specials. The Chamber citation said Peck uses social media especially well and is a true entrepreneur. The Community Food Warehouse of Mercer County, located in Sharon, received the Non-Profit Business of the Year Award. Executive Director Becky Page accepted the award, presented by Chamber Secretary Dana Eade. The Warehouse joined the Chamber last spring, having stepped in when Mercer's food pantry had to close by adding a monthly food pantry at Mercer United Methodist Church. It's mobile unit, Myron's Meal Mobile, came to Mercer once a week for two months this summer offering free lunches to anyone in need. In the award citation, the Warehouse was recognized for its creative fund-raising techniques to help the needy in Mercer County, such as sponsoring a drive for back-to-school supplies this fall and holding the annual Race to End Hunger. At the dinner, Palmer also highlighted some of the Chamber's accomplishments in the past three years, such as Trunk or Treat on the Square; Christmas on the Square and tree decorating contest; promoting the borough-wide spring yard sale; a golf outing; beginning a weekly newsletter for members; and spotlighting local businesses on its Facebook page. On Nov. 9, the Chamber is hosting a small business roundtable at its North Diamond Street office. The event is intended to brainstorm for ideas about how to promote Small Business Saturday locally. The Chamber's dinner was held at the newly-renovated banquet room at East End Fire Department. Johnny Oakes provided dinner music. Creekside Winery, Mercer, and Lakehill Brewery, Stoneboro, served the evening's drinks.

Cardi B pleads guilty, resolving case over NYC club brawls

NEW YORK (AP) — Grammy-winning rapper Cardi B resolved a years-long criminal case stemming from a pair of brawls at New York City strip clubs by pleading guilty Thursday in a deal that requires her to perform 15 days of community service. The 29-year-old singer agreed to a conditional discharge just as her case was about to go to trial, saying in a statement: "Part of growing up and maturing is being accountable for your actions." Cardi B, a New York City native whose real name is Belcalis Almanzar, pleaded guilty to two misdemeanor charges stemming from the August 2018 fights. Ten other counts, including two felonies, were dismissed. Two co-defendants also pleaded guilty. According to prosecutors, Cardi B and her entourage were targeting employees of Angels Strip Club in Flushing, Queens, over an apparent personal dispute. In one fight, chairs, bottles and hookah pipes were thrown as the group argued with a bartender. She and another employee had minor injuries. "No one is above the law," Queens District Attorney Melinda Katz said in a statement. "In pleading guilty today, Ms. Belcalis Almanzar and two co-defendants have accepted responsibility for their actions. This Office is satisfied with the resolution, which includes appropriate community service." In 2019, Cardi B rejected a plea deal that would have given her a conditional discharge.

Raiders face another tough Blue Devil team; Trojans' defense looks to hold the Steelers in check

By BRAD REICHARD & MICHAEL LINDSAY

Raiders face Cambridge Springs in 1A battle

Reynolds which is ranked seventh in the 1A poll in Pennsylvania this week, will take on Cambridge Springs tonight at Baird Field.

The Raiders (3-1) last met this group of Blue Devils from the north last season in the District 10 1A playoffs, coming home with a 34-20 win.

Reynolds holds a 3-1 advantage in historical wins over Cambridge Springs.

"We have got to see Cambridge Springs in the playoffs, and look forward to the game this week during the season", Reynolds head coach Josh Mull said.

"We look to every game as 'our next game' and know Cambridge Springs brings a younger group of talent to the field this season," Mull said. "They are a well-coached team, and we are addressing the mistakes we made last week."

As a share of first place in Region 1 is on the line, the Raiders bring the top offensive and defensive teams in Mercer County to the field.

Reynolds amassed 423 total yards against Sharpville but five turnovers led to four Sharpville touchdowns in Week 3.

Senior quarterback

Brayden McCloskey threw for 160 yards and a touchdown while also adding 87 rushing yards. He had four passes intercepted, but three of the picks came on deflections.

"We are working to correct those issues every day," Mull said. "We learn every game, and we learn every day."

Senior running back Jalen Wagner continues to lead the area in rushing yardage after he posted 134 yards and two touchdowns on 33 carries against Sharpville.

Wagner has rushed for 722 yards and a county-high nine touchdowns. He also leads the area in yards per attempt, 11.3.

Wagner has 3,227 career yards as he enters tonight's game.

The young Blue Devil team will test the Raider defense.

Ethan Counasse ran for a team-leading 73 yards at Maplewood and scored on a 40-yard run last week in its 34-7 win over Maplewood.

Counasse also caught a pair of touchdown passes from quarterback Morgan Applebee. Applebee also scored on a pair of short touchdown runs.

In 2020, Reynolds blanked Cambridge Springs in the District 10 semifinals at Reynolds, 40-0. Wagner ran for a game-high 134 yards and two touchdowns on nine carries. Reynolds limited Cambridge Springs to 74 total yards and five first downs.

"We have many of the same players from that game," Mull said. "They have some nice young athletes, and we have to eliminate mistakes and keep working hard for our next opponents."

Trojans face #1 ranked Steelers

Lakeview reclaims Region 1 title

Greenville wins final Mega; Jackson Gadsby earns Region top medalist

By BRAD REICHARD

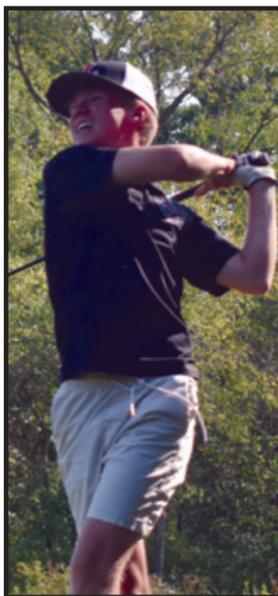

breichard@recordargusnews.com

EAST LACKAWANNOCK TOWNSHIP – The Lakeview Sailors won the Region 1 title on Thursday at Spring Valley Golf Course in the fifth Mega-Match of the season.

The Sailors have won six of the past eight titles, losing to Greenville in 2021 and Mercer in 2020.

Greenville's Brandon Stubert was the top medalist with a 79 on the par-72 course to lead the Trojans to a team tie with Lakeview. His 79 topped Lakeview's Jackson Gadsby's 81 to earn the Trojan's first top spot of the season earning five points, finishing with 21 points behind Lakeview's 24.

Gadsby's 81 earned him the top Region 1 player honors with a season average of 78.25 to best Mercer's Eli Ellison's 79 average. Greenville's Brandon Stubert and Nate and will likely face their toughest competition all year. The Steelers are 2-1 on the year, losing a non-conference match 40-38 to a tough Ursuline squad.

The Steelers are looking as strong as ever, with their offense averaging 44.6 points per game.

The Farrell offense is led by three key players: quarterback Kabron Smith, runningback Brandon Chambers, and receiver Kylon Wilson.

Smith has led the way for the Steelers, recording 581 yards passing for eight touchdowns and 55 yards rushing for one touchdown. Half of Smith's touchdown passes have been to Wilson, who has four touchdowns on 16 catches for 318 receiving yards and has rushed for 105 yards for three touchdowns.

Chambers has carried the ball 27 times for 240 yards for three touchdowns. Chambers has returned only two kicks this season and scored on each return, one for a 73-yard and the other for 83 yards.

The Trojans will need to have their best game to get their first win. The Trojans will need their offense to step up in a significant way. The Trojan offense has averaged 213.3 yards per game, scoring two touchdowns and one field goal. Malachi Hyde rushed for a touchdown against Wilmington, and sophomore quarterback Nick Solderich threw a pass to Jase Herrick for a 37-yard touchdown.

In Greenville's game against Slippery Rock, the Trojans recorded more passing yards than rushing yards for the first time of the season. The Trojans were down by multiple scores and were looking for big passing plays.

The Trojans will continue to rely on their rushing game with Hyde (214 yards for one touchdown) and Mason Dickens (29 carries for 91 yards). The Trojans have also been without running back Aden Sasala, who got injured in Greenville's game against Hubbard.

Greenville's passing game has had its ups and downs. Solderich has gone 25-52-3 for 283 yards for one touchdown. Herrick (nine receptions for 110 yards) and Braydon Porter (ten receptions for 120 yards) have seen the most action for Greenville. In recent weeks the Trojans have started to target a variety of receivers.

Jack Strausser (one reception for 26 yards), Noah Philson (two receptions for 17 yards), and Hyde (three receptions for 10 yards) have given Greenville a variety of options.

The Trojan's biggest strength has been its defense. Through three games, Greenville's defense is allowing 15.3 points per game. Herrick leads the Trojans in tackles with 31. Not far behind Herrick is Ethan Moore (29 tackles), Strausser (24 tackles), and Dickens (22 tackles). Logan Leskovac continues to be a force on the defensive line pressuring the opposition and forcing them into bad plays.

"I can't say enough of how our defense has kept us in every game," head coach Brain Herrick said. "We know that you have to score to win, and the hard work of these young men, everyday, tells my staff and I that they are all-in and want that W."

Lakeview on the rise to face Maplewood

The Lakeview Sailors will travel tonight to face off against the Maplewood Tigers in a Region-one matchup at Maplewood High school. The Sailors and Tigers are entering tonight's matchup with a 2-1 record. Lakeview lost its first game to a non-conference team in Seneca and won their subsequent matches with Saegertown (35-15) and Kennedy Catholic (51-14).

Maplewood won its first two season contests, defeating Saegertown 34-26 and Iroquois 40-20. However, the Tigers lost their most recent game to Cambridge Springs (34-7).

Like Lakeview, the Tigers will bring a run-focused offensive attack. Leading the way for Maplewood is senior runningback Ben Giliberto. Giliberto has averaged eight and a half yards per carry over three games for 567 yards and five touchdowns.

Giliberto will likely continue to see a heavy workload as quarterback AJ Proper is the only other Maplewood player to record over 50 yards rushing. Despite Giliberto's extensive run game, Dominick Kinney (31 yards rushing), Elliot Beuchat (30 yards rushing), and Jesse Doubet (17 yards rushing) have each recorded a rushing touchdown.

Proper as put up good numbers through three games at quarterback for Maplewood. Proper has been the only Tiger to line up behind the center and has gone 12-26-2 for 158 and three touchdowns. Proper's favorite receiver is senior Ethan Peterson. Peterson has averaged 17.8 yards per catch on five receptions for 89 yards and one touchdown.

Other Maplewood receivers to catch a touchdown pass include Kinney (17 yards receiving, and Garrett Butryn (36 yards receiving).

Beuchat leads this Tigers squad with 27 tackles, three of which resulted in a loss. Maplewoods defense has given up an average of 26.6 points per game. The Tigers will be facing Lakeviews formidable run game. The Sailors have gone to the ground game this season, attempting to throw the ball only ten times through three games.

Lakeview Sailors' head coach Bill Hickman swore before the season started that his linemen were "going to be a challenge for other teams," said Hickman. William Guy, Garet Guthrie, Tanner Vincent, and Garrett Mentch continue to open up holes for the Sailor's runningbacks.

Mitchell Tingley and Danick Hinkson have been stellar for Lakeview. Tingley leads the Sailors in rushing yards with 314 yards on 44 carries. Hinkson has rushed for 261 yards in 35 carries for a team-leading seven touchdowns.

Senior Cameron Pence has seen the most action under the center at quarterback. Splitting snaps with Pence is sophomore Leyton Zacherl. Pence is third on the team in rushing for 71 yards and two touchdowns and has completed two passes for 35 yards and one touchdown.

These two schools met last in 2020, resulting in a 30-22 overtime Maplewood victory.

Mercer looks to get back in the win column at Saegertown

Mercer has not been beaten by Saegertown since 1959 and looks to get their tenth win in a row against the Panthers tonight in Saegertown.

Mercer returns to league play after a 50-8 setback to Wilmington last week.

Mercer took an 8-7 lead on Daemyin Mattocks's 72-yard run and Nate Haines' two-point conversion. However, a fumble and two miscues helped Wilmington surge ahead.

Mattocks ran for a season-high 102 yards and intercepted a pass for Mercer.

Mattocks leads the Mustangs with 165 yards and three touchdowns while fellow junior running back Carter Addison has 122 yards rushing. Addison averages 7.6 yards per carry and Mattocks averages 7.5 per attempt. Fullback Nic Michael has added 92 yards and a score in Mercer's ground offense.

Sailor's team total.

"These guys are young and work very hard. I am so pleased for the effort they put in and I know they are so happy to be back on top of the region," Lakeview head coach Ralph Sundelin said.

Jamestown's Cole Terrent shot an 88. Aidan Woyt's 98, Nolan Herbold's 104, Gage Planavsky's 107 and Andrew Gould's 108 landed the Muskie's in third for the day.

Mercer's Ellison shot an 80 to take the second overall individual finish. The Mustangs' Kailyn Minner, Lincoln Saracco, Josh Borowicz and Adam Dupuis had 109, 118, 120, and 122 respectively.

Dylan Leskovac of Reynolds shot a 92, and he was followed by Cameron Buckley's 108, Chase Patterson's 130 and Dillon Anderson's 132.

"It's great to be back on top," Lakeview's Gadsby said. "I didn't play my best today but am so happy for our team."

Addie Floch scored nine points with four aces and a block, and Annie Lopusky led the Raiders with 12 assists, six points, three aces, five digs and two kills.

Kylie McAdoo had six points and 11 digs. Marissa Hillyer had four kills and seven digs.

McKenna McCandless had three digs and three kills for Mercer.

Maddie Daris had seven digs and an ace. Jillian Mount had six assists.

Ashlynn Heckathorn had eight kills for the Lady M's, and Lexie Walker and Phoebe Eakman each added three.

Mercer won the JV contest 2-1.

West Middlesex 3, Jamestown 0

Jamestown lost 3-0 to West Middlesex Thursday night at Jamestown High School. Jamestown fought hard in their games with the Big Reds for a final score of 18-25 in the first game, 21-25 for game two, and lost steam in the final match, losing 12-25.

Madilyn Enterline led Jamestown in digs and kills with 13 digs, four kills, and six points. Madison Bercis had a team-high seven points to go along with 11 digs and two assists. Josie Pfaff had a solid night for Jamestown recording seven digs, three kills, for two points and two assists.

Jamestown's setter Taylor Keener led her team in assists with nine and recorded one block and dig with two points. Morgan Bercis recorded six points, two kills, one block, and one dig.

Jamestown's JV team won 2-1 for a final score of 25-22 in game one, 24-26 in game 2 and 15-12 in the deciding match. Jamestown will host

Girls Soccer Greenville 2, North East 0

NORTH EAST — Greenville girl's soccer won its match with North East 2-0 on Thursday night against the Grapepickers at North East High school.

Greenville midfielder Sarah Mallek scored both of the Trojans' goals on three shots. The Trojans lone assist belongs to striker Stacie Weimert. Emily Weimert pitched a shutout, stopping all six shots and making 17 stops on the night.

The Trojans piled shots on net Thursday night with 15. Mallek, striker Kelsey Russell, and midfielder Megan Wood each had three shots on the net. Bella Whiteman and Lexi Busch had two shots.

With their win over North East, the Trojans improve their record to 3-3 on the season. Greenville's next match is home against Hickory on Monday.

MLB celebrates Roberto Clemente Day, ceremony at Citi Field

NEW YORK (AP) — For the big leaguers who saw him play, Roberto Clemente was a breathtaking talent and unmistakable force on the field who made a powerful impact on young ballplayers.

Major League Baseball celebrated its 21st annual Roberto Clemente Day on Thursday, with festivities centered in New York, where the Mets hosted the Hall of Fame outfielder's former team, the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Clemente died in a plane crash at age 38 attempting to deliver relief supplies to earthquake victims in Nicaragua on New Year's Eve 1972. To mark the 50th anniversary year of that tragedy, more than a dozen winners of baseball's treasured Roberto Clemente Award for philanthropy and playing excellence joined Clemente family

New era in Patriots-Steelers rivalry begins minus Brady, Ben

PITTSBURGH (AP) — For the better part of two decades, the Pittsburgh Steelers and New England Patriots would meet almost annually in a rivalry heavy on stakes and star power.

Not so much in 2022.

Not with Ben Roethlisberger in retirement, Tom Brady in Tampa and the two teams that defined excellence in the AFC throughout the 2000s and 2010s undergoing transitions.

When the Patriots (0-1) walk onto the Acrisure Stadium turf on Sunday to face the Steelers (1-0), it will mark the first time since 1998 that the two marquee NFL franchises face off without either Brady or Roethlisberger (or both) in the huddle.

(Or you know, three months after New England quarterback Mac Jones was born. Weird, right?)

"It's going to be funny the first couple plays not seeing (Brady) out there,"

Thiel won two of three doubles matches. At first doubles, Natalie Zgurich and Payton Blankenbeckley defeated Erica Jasinski and Jayna Baer, 8-6. Greenville's Reagan Hayne and Emily Peters defeated Rachel Weber and Madison Gannon 8-2 at third doubles.

White Sox pound 5 homers, rock 1st-place Guardians 8-2

CLEVELAND (AP) — Elvis Andrus hit one of Chicago's five home runs off rookie Hunter Gaddis — and backed up a pregame swipe at the Guardians — as the White Sox cut Cleveland's lead in the AL Central to three games with an 8-2 victory in a makeup game Thursday.

Andrus connected in the fifth inning off Gaddis (0-2), who became the first Cleveland pitcher to allow five homers in a game since Luis Tiant in 1969.

On Wednesday, Andrus raised some eyebrows by telling reporters he expected the first-place Guardians "to crumble, the closer we get."

Gavin Sheets hit a two-run homer in the second to start Chicago's homer barrage against Gaddis, and Andrew Vaughn, Yoan Moncada and Yasmani Grandal joined Andrus by hitting shots off the right-hander.

Lance Lynn (7-5) limited the Guardians to two run and six hits in 6 1/3 innings. The right-hander is 5-0 in his last seven starts.

Cleveland had its winning streak stopped at six as it began a run of nine straight games against the White Sox and Minnesota Twins.

longtime Steelers defensive end Cam Heyward said. And maybe a relief, too. Brady typically toyed with Pittsburgh, beating the Steelers in the AFC championship game three times or swatting them aside during the regular season with startling regularity.

Yet the near-constant churn that embodies the modern NFL finally has shaken two teams that have long used the other as a measuring stick.

"I can't remember the last time we've gone three years without playing the Steelers," New England coach Bill Belichick said. "It seems like it's been a team we've usually played every year. Obviously, it's been a little while. Some definite changes since the last time we saw them."

The Steelers have just three players — Heyward, linebacker Devin Bush and safety Terrell Edmunds — who were in the starting lineup the last time New England and Pittsburgh met, a 33-3 clinic by the Patriots in the 2019 season opener.

The Steelers will be without reigning NFL defensive player of the year T.J. Watt. The perennial All-Pro linebacker went on injured reserve Thursday with a left pectoral injury.

Hall of Famers Dave Winfield and Jim Thome were among the Clemente Award winners introduced on the field before highlights of the 15-time All-Star's life and career played on the large video board in center field.

Players and coaches from both teams — all wearing Clemente's No. 21, as did some others around the majors — lined the baselines. Puerto Rican musician Jose Feliciano performed the national anthem of Puerto Rico and "The Star-Spangled Banner," and Clemente's 4-year-old grandson threw out a first pitch in an RC III Pirates jersey.

"It is a very special energy today," said Luis Clemente, Roberto's son. "The energy is totally different this year."

Clemente, a cherished icon in baseball-loving Puerto Rico, became the first Caribbean and Latin American player enshrined in the Hall of Fame in 1973.

Wildfire smoke dangerous to those with lung conditions

Dear Doctors: I got sick with COVID-19 this summer — racing heart, heavy lungs, the whole bit. I was just getting back to normal when our part of Washington got hit hard with smoke from wildfires. It seems like it's making my COVID-19 symptoms come back.

Elizabeth Ko, MD, and Eve Glazier, MD

Dear Reader: Drought conditions throughout much of the West have led to wildfire seasons that are longer than in previous years.

Fires are growing larger and hotter, which causes the smoke to rise high into the atmosphere. As we have seen in recent years, this smoke travels far from its source, sometimes thousands of miles, causing air pollution that can be quite severe.

In addition to gaseous pollutants, such as carbon monoxide, nitrogen oxide and volatile organic compounds that act as irritants, wildfire smoke contains microscopic particles.

These particles can irritate the eyes and respiratory tract, cause reduced lung function and tax the heart.

People living with chronic lung conditions that make it difficult to breathe — such as asthma, bronchitis, emphysema and COPD — are particularly vulnerable to the adverse health effects of wildfire smoke.

Air that has been polluted with wildfire smoke also poses a health risk to infants, children, older adults and pregnant women.

People who are sick with COVID-19, or who, like you, are in the process of recovering from coronavirus infection, are also at increased risk.

On the milder side, exposure to wildfire smoke can cause red, watery or stinging eyes; a dry, sore or scratchy throat; runny nose; coughing; fatigue; and headache.

More serious symptoms include wheezing, shortness of breath, a rapid or irregular heartbeat and chest pain. It's important that these symptoms not be ignored.

Even a mild reaction is a warning that the smoke is beginning to damage the tissues of the body. That means taking steps to protect yourself from its effects.

When wildfire smoke moves into the area, it is recommended that people avoid exertion. When possible, they should remain indoors with doors and windows closed.

Central air conditioning, which involves an air filter, can help reduce particulates in the home.

If you have an ordinary box fan, you can make a homemade air filtration system. Simply secure an HVAC filter, available at most hardware and home improvement stores, to the rear of the fan.

How many of these devices are needed depends on the size of the room. A somewhat more robust system is known as a Corsi-Rosenthal box.

It's a "cube" made up of five air filters taped together, with a box fan lying on top, facing upward, toward the ceiling.

From yesterday's column, South was in four spades. (East's third-hand opening looks dangerous if West responds two clubs, but East-West were using the Drury convention, so this bid would have indicated heart support.) North's cue-bid showed three or more spades and a maximum pass.

West led his singleton heart, of course. East took two tricks in the suit and then gave his partner a ruff. West shifted to a low diamond. Declarer won with dummy's ace, cashed the spade king and confidently played a club to his queen. However, West produced the king: down one.

Instead, South should have played a trump to his hand and continued with the heart queen. Here, West could not have ruffed, so a club would have disappeared from the dummy. Then declarer would have crossruffed home.

Did you notice that East had missed a tough winning defense? Since West had surely led a singleton (he would have raised hearts with three), East could have returned a low heart at trick two. West would have ruffed and shifted to a Chill out, relax and refuse to let others rile you up. Stand your ground and concentrate on what's important to you instead of worrying about what others do or think. Use your imagination to figure out how to improve your life. Surround yourself with people who offer positive reinforcement. You will receive needed help.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Refuse to let anger seep into conversations or affect how you do your job. Focus on making positive changes that will encourage you to do the best job possible. The way you do things will affect the kind of support you receive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Explore the possibilities and enjoy what life offers. Get involved in events and activities that spark your imagination and promote discipline. Don't let uncertainty take control.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Question information you receive. Refuse to unleash your emotions on others. Give others the benefit of the doubt and go about your business without letting what others say or do impact your progress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Keep moving forward, regardless of what others do today. Think outside the box, and you'll devise a plan that surpasses your expectations. Trust your knowledge and ability to get things done.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Question shared expenses and joint ventures. Not everyone will share your standards. A loss will catch you off guard if you let others handle your financial affairs. Don't overreact.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Pay attention to what unfolds, and you'll offset a costly mistake. Sit tight, regardless of the changes others make. Before making a change, take time to discover what's best for you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Avoid sensitive talks if they could disrupt your plans or start a feud. Pay more attention to how you can make a difference and benefit yourself and others. Personal growth is favored.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Put your energy where it counts. Inspiration and excitement will follow if you use your wisdom and experience to get others to commit to your plans. Think big and make things happen.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You may thrive on change, but don't do anything that isn't necessary. Save your time, energy and cash. Socializing will lead to questions and thoughts about how to proceed. Be a good listener.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Forge ahead with determination. Make your point, and don't hesitate to branch off on your own if it will get you closer to achieving your goal. Don't take on the impossible.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Pay attention to new information or technical changes that could influence how you do things. Your ability to adjust will determine the outcome. Keep busy and avoid controversy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Call on those you trust to help you, then discuss your plans. Listen to suggestions and adjust only what's necessary to get the best results. A partnership will stabilize your situation.

RES STUDENTS TAKE A STROLL THROUGH 'DOG'S COLORFUL DAY' DURING BOOK WALK

In the U.S., it is estimated that over 100,000 people have sickle cell disease and may require frequent blood transfusions throughout their lifetime — as many as 100 units of blood per patient each year.

Like others who receive frequent transfusions, some sickle cell patients develop immunity to blood antigens (proteins) that occur on cell surfaces, which makes finding compatible blood very challenging.

These are antigens other than ABO and Rh.

Check-in: Friendly Staff, Quick, Awesome, Welcoming, Upgrade, Fabulous
Room: Nice bed, Clean, Spacious, Quiet, Great amenities
Location: Safe, Quiet, Good eats, Convenient, Easy parking
Comments: Cleanest most comfortable room we have stayed in for quite sometime. This includes many of the big chain motels that have not kept standards up but are much more expensive. Bar and grill next door that has a limited menu for food but food is very good. Prices are good and you get a ten percent discount for staying at the motel. Very delighted with our two day stay. You won't be disappointed.
